

CLuBBERS, MaRK Yo CaLeNdARS

In addition to surfer-wannabe UH-Mānoa, Mainland imports at Magoo's, Starbucks locations overflowing with textbooks and wi-fi equipped laptops, and more drag queens in Waikīkī on Halloween night, the fall season shall bring a few more surprises to hot, humid Honolulu city nights.

On Sept. 12, Alien IQ will bring down Juju of Phuturo Recordings at Nick's Fishmarket. (See Hot Picks on Page 12.) In addition to more Popular parties, mark Oct. 10 on your PDA because they're gonna surprise the island with a little something something.

The last Saturday of this month, Sept. 27, shall mark the final episode of ISIS at Auntie Pasto's. Sisters In Sound was the first female DJ collective on the island — if they never surface again, they shall be sorely missed. First the gorgeous Zita leaves, now the rest will leave ... it'll be anarchy!

Galapagos 4 and Indica Plootica will be bringing Qwel and DJ Meaty Ogre to Players 'Aiea — otherwise known as b-boy heaven — on Sunday, Sept. 28. It's a school night though, so college children will have to plan their homework schedules responsibly this weekend. Anticon's alias will also be on the island at the same location, on Oct. 5.

And lastly, the good ole reliable Wave will be hosting the legendary breakbeat pioneer DJ Dan (pictured), just in time for his new CD from Kinetic Records. On Sept. 20, our favorite club on the edge of Waikīkī will host a slew of artists for the First Annual Electronic Music Expo, running from Sept. 23 -25. It will be the Pacific Rim's largest music industry gathering, so be there or be tuneless.

Upcoming Glitter and Glamour parties will cover Denim, Haunted Houses, Cowboys and Indians, and Bad Santas. Also in the works is the Second Annual Ultimate Bartending Competition and a totally new concept, Rock-a-Roke — karaoke with a live rock band backing the singer. Very Jack Black. In fact, the Wave probably has something going every night till the end of the universe.

RYAN SENAGA